

Ms Ravadee Prasertcharoensuk

Director of Sustainable Development Foundation, Thailand

Ms Ravadee Prasertcharoensuk has an educational background in social administration, community development, and human rights. She has worked in the development field since 1975. She has actual direct working experience in the rural sector before playing an active role in advocacy and campaign for structural change toward people-centred sustainable development at the national and international levels.

At present, she is the director of Sustainable Development Foundation, a rights-based environmental non-governmental organisation promoting inclusion, governance, customary rights on ecosystem-based sustainable natural resource management, and women's rights. She is a member of the Executive Board of International Collective in Support of Fishworkers and one of the initiators of Thailand Climate Justice for All network.